Has your Cathodic Protection (Anode bag) been tested on your underground propane tank in the past 3 years?

~Every underground propane tank has at least (1) anode bag installed to help prevent corrosion at the time of installation.
~Without proper protection, a tank is vulnerable to corrosion, which results into a possible leak.
~According to the NFPA 58 LP-GAS codes, this MUST be done in intervals not to exceed 36 months.
~Depending on your soil type, these anode bags could be consumed in as little as 6 years.
~This is why there is a periodic test in place to make sure your underground propane tank will continue to be protected from corrosion and any unwanted leaks.

For $69.00 Service Oil Company will send out one of their certified technicians to administer the tests needed to assure your tank lasts for years to come.

If your anode bag is not working properly our team member will be able to provide a quote at that time for the repair that would protect your tank the best! Please call today to schedule your anode bag test or service needs today! Ask our representatives about our referral programs! 717-564-1657 x 105
